Wall-st., New-York, room No. 4. Capital stock, $200,002—thares $100 each. The books of subscription for stock in this Company are now open at their office, where parties desirous of becoming iterested may procure stock, Pambhlets of Organization and By-Laws, and any information relative to the objects and prospects of the Company. This enterprise commends itself to the confidence of Capitalists, the Company having in possession one of the most valuable mines in California, located on Wood's Creek, near the City of Sonora, Tuolumne County, and having nearly complete an engine and stamp work of the largest class, which will be shipped by a clipper vessel, at an early day. It is the purpose of the Trustees to prosecute the work with vigor and a view to profit from the business of mining. It is deemed unnecessary to enter into a calculation of probable profits, it having been satisfactorily ascertained that companies already in operation with good machiner; have been eminently successful.

The machinery row before made for this Company, is under the immediate supervision of R. S. Kino, Esq., the builder of the "Good Hill Quartz Mining Company's (known as Peek's) Mill." which has produced such astonishing results, and will be twice the size of that establishment. The employees in all responsible positions will be shareholders and selected with special regard to ability and integrity, and required to give bonds with surelies, in such sums as will be deemed sufficient to guard the interests of Shareholders.

Persons residing out of the city may obtain stock, pamphets, or any information, by addressing the Treasurer, post paid, by mail.

MEN OF CHARACTER. By Doug-las Jerreld.

JOB PIPPINS, the Man who could not Helpit. By Douglas Jerrold, author of "Titus Trumps," "Istac Cheek," "Man Made of Money," hc., hc. Nothing can equal the buoyant, unctuous and overflow-

Nothing can equal the buoyant, unctuous and overflowing humor which characterizes the skatches of "Men of Character." from the pen of the great English humorist, Douglas Jerrold. The oddest and most laugh provoking characters are grouped together, and comic situations follow each other rapidly, and are so irresistibly funny, odd, and laughable, that the most cynical are betrayed into merriment. There is no resisting Jerrold's humor. It takes you by storm; and when once you have commonced the perusal of his pages, you follow him with delight, as line after line unfalds his quaint thoughts, and the rich adventures, plights and predicaments of his herses. "Job Pippina, the Man who could not Help it," is one of the best of the series of "Men of Character," and all who have read the preceding numbers of "Titos Trumps" and have read the preceding numbers of "Titus Trumps" and "Isaac Cheek," will know how to value the appearance of a third of the series. Price 12|c.

THE CATHOLIC CHAPTER IN THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES—A Lecture, delivered in Metropolitan Hall, on Monday Evening, March 8, 1837, for the henefit of the Heuse of Protection, under the charge of the Saters of Mercy. By the Most Rev. John Hughes, D. D. Archbishop of New-York.
This last Lecture of the Most Rev. Archbishop furnishes at one view a History of the Colonies from the earniest period, and exhibit the various religious inducates which were involved in the Revolutionary contest, and give it a peculiar value to those who would truly understand the instery of our country.

peculiar value to those who would truly understand the history of our country.

In this discourse, the Most Rev. Archbishop has proved beyond cavil, not only by force of argument, but by a powerful, convincing and undisputable array of facts, the indebtedness of the United States to Catholic Powers and Catholic Influence for their Liberty; and that Religious Liberty was not a boon, but entirely a matter of necessity.

Southey—The Amours of Dean Swift—Reminiacences of Coleridge and Eachy, frequently displaying the neat humor of a Sydney Smith, the clowing narative aware of a Macaniay. These Essays exhibit a variety of treatment, and are models of their class. The sketch of the Franch Revolution of 1815, and the paper on the Amours of Bean Swift, are masterpleces in their different ways; the one as a forcibly painted picturesque panorama of starting events, the other as a subtle investigation of character.
The story of Lord Relson's Lady Hamilton is an example of pathos where the interest grows out of a clear, firmly presented statement. The paper on Egypt is an admirable resume of the results of antiqualism study, in a style at once learned and popular.

JUST PUBLISHED — An Interesting Book—GERTRUDE LESLIE, Or THE QUEEN'S VENGEANCE; a thrilling Historical Romance of the times and characters of the Count of Queen Mary. While the adventures and incidents in the life of the herotae are strictly true, they nevertheless far exceed in exciting interest any work of fiction ever published. As an exposition of the crimes of Priestcraft, as they manifested themselves at that remarkable period, this book is of the highest interest. Its graphic sketches of men, manners and merals, in and around that singular Court, show the genus of a master of the pen. It is but one continuous sit ing of the most thrilling incidents, from the first page to the last, and, to use the expression of one of the London But we was, "heeps the blood of the reader at fever heat from the first page to the last."
